

Classification of Political Parties that Will Probably be Standing for the House and or Senate in 2022
Top of the Ballot	Middle of the Ballot	Bottom of the Ballot
Anti-Globalist or Non-Globalist Policies	Neutral or Unsure	Globalist or Supports their Policies
Australian Christians	Australian Affordable Housing Party	Australian Democrats
Australian Citizens Party	Country Liberal Party (NT)	Australian Greens
Australian Federation Party	Democratic Labour Party	Australian Labor Party (ALP)
Centre Alliance	Derryn Hinch's Justice Party	Australian Progressives
Christian Democratic Party (Fred Nile Group)	Federal ICAC Now 	Australian Values Party
Informed Medical Options Party	Indigenous - Aboriginal Party of Australia	Climate Emergency Action Alliance: Vote Planet
Liberal Democratic Party	Katter's Australian Party (KAP)	Jacqui Lambie Network
No5G Party (Soon to be The Freedom Alliance)	Legalise Cannabis Australia	Kim for Canberra
Pauline Hanson's One Nation	Rex Patrick Team	Liberal Party of Australia
The Great Australian Party	Seniors United Party of Australia	National Party of Australia
United Australia Party	Julie Collins (Independent - Senate)	Reason Australia
AustraliaOne* Endorsed Independents	Warren Grzic (Independent - Senate)	Socialist Alliance
Shooters, Fishers and Farmers Party	Guitang Lu (Independent - Senate)	Socialist Equality Party
Health Australia Party		Sustainable Australia Party - Stop Overdevelopment / Corruption
William Laing (Independent - Senate)		Victorian Socialists
Danny Lim (Independent - Senate)		WESTERN AUSTRALIA PARTY
		TNL
		Animal Justice Party
		VOTEFLUX.ORG Upgrade Democracy!
		Max Boddy (Socialist Equality Party)
		Oscar Grenfell (Socialist Equality Party)

* May not be registered as a Party in time for the 2022 Federal Election but is fielding Independents endorsed by Party

The Great Australian Party – Is NOW, contrary to previous advice, fielding candidates for the Senate for NSW, namely Matthew Hopkins and Mistie Sibraa

Federal ICAC Now – may not be able to be registered for the 2022 Federal Election – may not be standing any candidates